East-West Talks Rumored Under Way

Russ Said Hunting Way Out Of Jam

U.S., French Chiefs Reported In Warsaw

PARIS, April 20 — Diplomatic circles in Paris were rife with reports today that important East-West talks—presumably on the lifting of the Soviet blockade of Berlin—are now under way in Warsaw.

It was pointed out that two top Western officials have reportedly arrived in Warsaw from Berlin. They are Brig. Gen. Frank Howley, U. S. commandant of Berlin, and Gen. Noiret, commander of the French sector.

Gen. Howley ostensibly went to Warsaw at the invitation of the Polish military mission in Berlin.

But the view was expressed in French diplomatic circles that "serious talks" are under way in Warsaw.

THE CONSERVATIVE Paris newspaper Figaro said that "contacts between Moscow and Washington have been established" through a "neutral" channel which is conducting negotiations on behalf of Russia.

But diplomatic sources reported that direct East-West talks are being held in the Polish capital.

The reports follow persistent rumors that Russia is preparing to end its unsuccessful blockade of Berlin in the last week, the Russians have reportedly sent a Soviet general to Washington, informed East-German groups that the blockade is near an end, and sent out "feelers" for an end of the blockade to western governments.

None of these latter reports has been confirmed. But the impression has gained currency (Continued on Page Two)

Admiral Kirk Gets Nod For Moscow Post

WASHINGTON, April 20—President Truman today named Admiral Alan G. Kirk, now U. S. envoy to Belgium, as the new American ambassador to Russia.

Kirk, a one-time chief of naval intelligence, replaces Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, who has returned to duty with the Army.

Mr. Truman's announcement that Kirk will be sent to Russia as American ambassador comes amid an intensified soviet "peace offensive."

The Russians are rumored to have offered to lift the Berlin blockade under certain conditions and there are other indications that the Kremlin is eager for at least a temporary end to the "cold war."

Diplomatic observers saw in the President's decision to send Kirk to Moscow without delay an indication that behind-the-scenes maneuvers toward a rapprochement between Russia and the western Allies are in progress.

175 Teachers Aim Of Hunt

CLEVELAND, April 20—Cleveland school administrators began a search today for 175 elementary teachers in an effort to reduce the city's crowded classrooms.

Officials of the board of education found some encouragement in a slow but steady stream of applicants, obviously attracted to the Cleveland schools as a result of the board's recent action in raising the teachers' salary scheduled from a minimum of $2,400 to $2,700 and from a maximum of $4,500 to $4,800, starting in Sept.

The ceremonies were held at the O'Connell street post office, center of the famous Irish rebellion of 1916 against eight centuries of British domination.

China Faces Further War With Soviet

NANKING, April 20 — War-weary China faced the immediate threat of a renewed major fighting along the Yangtze today as the midnight deadline of a Communist ultimatum drew near.

Acting President Li Tsung-Jen and his highest aides remained closeted in almost continuous consultation, but there was no announcement of any government decision on the red peace terms.

On the broad Yangtze artillery exchanges between Communist and Nationalist troops, lined up along opposite banks of the river, betokened preparations for possibly imminent resumption of large-scale civil war hostilities.

Chinese government leaders weighed the question of accepting virtual surrender by submitting to a 24-point Communist ultimatum or risking renewed onslaughts by some million Red troops massed north of the Yangtze.

Time was running short. The Communists had demanded a "yes or no" answer by today and this was interpreted to mean the government has until midnight to deliver its reply.

No Need For Tax Hike Says Democrat Leader

WASHINGTON, April 20 — An administration leader in congress declared today that the nation's financial and fiscal situation is so bright that he sees no need now for increased taxes.

The rosy picture was painted by Rep. Cannon (D) Mo., chairman of the house appropriations committee.

Cannon declared that "revenues are running larger than anticipated, we are now in the black, and the future looks very promising."

President Truman requested a four billion dollar increase in taxes in his state-of-the-union and budget messages last January and has since reiterated his belief in the need for higher levies.

Cannon qualified his prediction by pointing out that it is difficult to foresee the future. The uncertain foreign situation and the possibility that larger sums of money might have to be voted for subsidies to farmers might change the picture.

Cannon is optimistic over the possibility of defraying the increased costs of foreign aid (including military assistance to western Europe) from current revenue.

Surplus Of Wheat May Go To 500,000,000

WASHINGTON, April 20—The government forecast today that the wheat surplus may reach 500 bushels by mid-1950 and hinted strongly that production controls will be sought for next year's crop.

The agriculture department made this prediction in which it indicated that exports on the 1949-50 crop year may be about 450 million bushels. This is 50 million bushels less than anticipated shipments in the current year.

Exports of this size would be consistent with the 41-nation world wheat agreement which President Truman sent to the Senate Tuesday for ratification.

The pact guarantees the U. S. an export market for only 168 million bushels a year. But substantial quantities of wheat are sent to occupied areas and to non-signatories of the pact. Importers under the agreement also may decide to buy in excess of their guaranteed takings.

If the government's index of prices paid by farmers holds steady until June 15 the loan rate on the new crop would average $1.96 per bushels compared with a $2 national average for the 1948 crop.

Realty Facing Slight Decline

CLEVELAND, April 20 — A slight decline in realty prices for the next several months is seen by Theodore H. Maenner of Omaha, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Speaking before the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards in Cleveland Maenner termed the moderate drop in real estate prices "a healthy and normal reaction to postwar inflation" and said it reflected "the inevitable return of prices to a reasonable balance between supply and demand."

Mart Slump Reflects In Farm Values

WASHINGTON, April 20—Government experts said today that farm land values are on the way down for the first time in 10 years with the Western states bearing the brunt of the price deflation.

Agriculture department officials believe the slump in farmers' incomes probably is the chief cause of weakness in the land market.

But they also say that the downturn reflects an easing up in the general economic picture, with smaller production in certain industries and increased unemployment.

Land values are not expected to fall as rapidly as other prices. However, the government men are inclined to accept the opinion of one farm real estate operator that "the bloom is off the land boom."

Actually, values in half the states were higher on March 1 than they were last November. But these increases were more than offset by declines in 16 states.

With the one exception of New Mexico, where there was no change, prices took a tumble in all of the Mountain and Pacific states.

On a percentage basis, California land prices have fallen more than those in any other state.

The experts think low returns from citrus and other specialty crops and last winter's freeze damage are responsible for a six per cent drop since November.

In all, California asking prices have slumped 12 per cent since the peak of two years ago.

In some parts of the country, prospective buyers admittedly are not in as strong a financial position as in earlier years, and many of them do not have adequate down payments.

This is expected to mean fewer cash sales in 1949.

However, farm mortgage debt is rising again now that the peak of postwar demand seems to be past. Outstanding mortgage debt on Jan. 1 was five per cent above a year earlier and about nine per cent above the low of Jan. 1, 1946.

The conclusion is that a seller's market still prevails for the better farming areas and the better farms. But dealers have been finding it more and more necessary to reduce asking prices if they wish to make a sale.

As for would-be buyers, the government says there are "apparently uncertain regarding future trends in general economic conditions, and in the prices of farm products in particular."

Plan Board Gains Wide New Powers

Council Gives Okeh To Proposals

Despite cries that it smacked of "temporary dictatorship" and was "too hard on the little fellows," city council Tuesday night passed a blanket ordinance giving wide powers to the new city planning commission.

The ordinance requires builders to obtain permits from the commission before erecting new buildings or making alterations and additions to existing structures.

It was proposed to council by members of the newly appointed commission, comprising of Leslie D. May, president of chamber of commerce; Louis H. Mebs, local contractor; Paul Johnson, office equipment dealer; and William Weldon, wholesale grocer.

THE BLANKET ordinance presumably will remain in effect until the planning commission works out a zoning plan for Circleville, dividing the city into factory, residential and business districts.

Councilman Ray Cook said that although he considered passage of the ordinance would be tantamount to creating a "temporary dictatorship," he was, for once, "in accord with such a thing."

Councilman Robert Adkins said members of the commission were ready to work with all possible speed.

"There will be no waste of time," he said. "And this ordinance is a blanket one making it mandatory for builders to apply for a permit. It will protect everyone in Circleville."

Adkins went on to explain that the members of the commission had been appointed by Mayor Thurman I. Miller in accordance with the provisions of the state code, and that the ordinance before council "gives the commission every authority in the books to regulate zoning."

"As the situation is now," Adkins said, "persons living in new subdivisions are protected under subdivision terms. But persons living across the street from them, in the older sections of (Continued on Page Two)

30 Killed As Quake Rocks Chile Region

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 20—An unconfirmed death toll of more than 30 persons was reported today in a severe earthquake which rocked wide areas of Chile last night near the city of Concepcion on the Pacific coast.

The heaviest toll was reported at Traiguen, where 30 persons in the city jail were reported to have perished in the building's collapse.

One death was reported at Angol, where 30 per cent of the buildings were destroyed and another fatality in the town of Los Angeles, where heavy damage also was done.

The cities of Chillan, 50 miles inland from Concepcion, Talca and Temuco also suffered damage, but casualty reports were incomplete. The quake affected all of Central and Western Chile as far south as Magellanes and the border of Southern Argentina.

Sister Quits

MINNEAPOLIS, April 20—The Kenny Foundation announced today that Sister Elizabeth Kenny, Australian nurse whose concept of polio treatment has advanced the fight against infantile paralysis, is withdrawing from active part in the group's affairs. Sister Kenny assured the group of her availability for consultation "at any time."

Firebell Shall Ring, Council Rules After Hot Burst Of Oratory

The old fire bell shall ring.

Such was the dictum of City Hall solons Tuesday night after listening to the third reading of an ordinance making it the duty of the Circleville fire chief to see that the location of fires is tapped out on the ancient gong. Only one dissenting voice was raised.

After reading of the ordinance by Council Clerk Fred Nicholas, Councilman Ray Cook moved to amend the ordinance to substitute a general alarm for the location sound. He was seconded by Councilman E. L. Montgomery.

"What's the idea of the general alarm?" demanded Councilman Ray Anderson. "What good would it be?"

EXPLAINING to other members of council that he was not trying to influence them in any way, Councilman Robert Adkins said:

"I was given a different slant on this whole question the other day. Under the present system, without the bell, when the fire truck goes out the siren is sounded. Persons hearing it become (Continued on Page Two)

Local Arrests Increase Kid Suspect List In Five County Banditry

Two more youthful members of a gang responsible for robberies throughout a five-county area have been arrested by Circleville and Pickaway County police officials.

Police Chief William McCrady said Wednesday he believed the robberies performed throughout the area over the last three months have been the work of three separate gangs. He said 12 members of these gangs have been brought in for questioning to date—but expressed the opinion that the 12 are members of only two of the gangs. A third gang has not been touched yet, he declared.

The 12 alleged members of the gangs are being held by officials in jails throughout the five-county area. Sheriff Radcliff said most of the youths are residents of Pickaway County.

Chief McCrady said total value of the items taken by the youthful robbers—whose ages range from 15 to 25—would "run close to $2,500."

PICKAWAY County Sheriff Charles Radcliff reported Wednesday that robbers broke into a Williamsport filling station Tuesday. Two radios and a quantity of cigarettes were stolen.

The sheriff said he thought the robbery was the work of members of the same gangs.

He said members of these gangs are believed to have been responsible for robberies of grocery stores in Ross and Franklin Counties, two motorcycle shops in Columbus, grain elevators in Circleville, Amanda and Stoutsville, the Snack Shack in Circleville and filling stations in Fairfield and Ross counties.

Chief McCrady said the robberies were brought to his attention by Columbus detectives, who had been sent to Circleville to investigate two youths alleged (Continued on Page Two)

Casualties and Damage Along Yangtze

SHANGHAI, April 20 — Two British warships fought blazing gun battles with Communist shore batteries along the Yangtze river today and official announcements said both British vessels were damaged and suffered crew casualties.

The 1,500-ton sloop Amethyst was driven ashore about midway between Nanking and Shanghai with 20 of her crew listed as casualties.

The 1,170-ton destroyer consort, which raced to help the Amethyst, was declared to have fought a running battle of some 15 miles with shore artillery, suffering casualties and damage.

(The British admiralty in London announced casualties and damage on both vessels but did not indicate their extent. Reuters News Agency reported from Nanking that casualties on the consort were believed "heavy.")

THE GUN exchanges coincided with reports that the Nationalist government has rejected a Communist ultimatum that Red forces be permitted to cross the Yangtze.

Nationalist sources have declared that the ultimatum, expiring at midnight (11 a. m. EST today), virtually amounted to a demand for complete surrender.

Gunfire was heard in Nanking early tonight and it was reported the Communists had started a general action aimed at occupying the city by April 25.

A British naval spokesman in Shanghai said the destroyer consort had to "fight its way through" in its dash to reach the (Continued on Page Two)

No pay raises for Circleville police and firemen. An ordinance to increase pay was defeated 4-3 by city council Tuesday night. The bill would have raised chief's salaries to $202.50, patrolmen and firemen to $192.50.

Councilman Ray Anderson pointed out that city finances would not permit passage of the ordinance, even though police and firemen stood in need of it. There was little discussion of the ordinance. Vote was: Anderson, Adkins, Horn and Montgomery—no; Brown, Cook and Wallace—yes.

ADKINS conceded merit to both sides in the fire bell argument.

A rollcall was taken on Cook's motion to amend the ordinance. It was defeated 5-2, with Cook and Montgomery voting "yes."

All councilmen but Boyd Horn were in favor of striking out section 2 of the ordinance, which called for periodic inspections by the fire chief of individual boxes in the alarm system.

Circleville, have no such protection.

"This bill will protect everyone," he repeated. "It probably should have been enacted when they took the circle out."

He asked for a suspension of the rules to permit immediate passage of the ordinance.

But before the vote could be taken, Councilman Boyd Horn stood up to remark that he thought he saw a "loophole in it."

"Don't get me wrong," Horn said. "I don't believe in having a junkyard moved in beside me, but at the same time I don't believe in knocking the little fellow down."

Adkins took the floor again to explain that a person who has been refused a permit by the commission would still have the right of appeal to city council.

Council has the power to override the commission. Following Adkins' speech council voted to suspend the rules. The ordinance was passed unanimously.

BUT EVEN after its passage councilmen apparently were still a little dubious about it.

Adkins was grinning a little as he explained further that the ordinance gave the commission "unlimited power" to regulate "plumbing, heating and electric codes."

Councilman Cook squirmed in his chair and shook his head.

"I DOUBT if they have that power until council passes judgement on it," he said.

Section 1 of the ordinance states:

"That a permit shall be obtained from the Planning Commission of the city of Circleville before any new buildings or structures for residential or business or any purposes are erected, started or constructed within the corporate limits of the city of Circleville."

And section 2:

"That no existing building, structure or sheds, garages shall be altered, changed, added to unless first a permit be obtained from the Planning Commission of the City of Circleville."

Section 3:

"a) That this ordinance shall be effective on the 19 day of April, 1949, shall not effect any existing structures or buildings or erection or construction or addition or alterations already actually started or upon which work has been started prior to the effective date of this ordinance.

"b) That an application for permit can be obtained from the city auditor or service director. That a permit fee of $5 shall be charged for the granting of a permit by the City Planning Commission."

Section 4:

"Application for the permit to the Planning Commission shall contain the purpose for which building or structure shall be used when completed, the name of person for whom building or structure is to be erected, constructed, changed or altered, or added to. Name of contractor or builder, a comprehensive plan or outline of building or structure and construction, alteration or changes in existing building, location and any other information deemed necessary by Planning Commission."

Last section of the ordinance deems it an emergency dealing with the safety and welfare of Circleville citizens.

Six New Bills Read Before City Council

Six new ordinances were read to city council during regular meeting Tuesday night.

An ordinance to amend annual appropriation ordinance 3485 to include an extra sum from the general fund to the department of public service for repair and surface treatment of streets and alleys in Circleville was referred to the service committee for further study.

An ordinance to provide for a caretaker of grounds at Berger hospital and to appropriate money for wages was passed unanimously after council voted to suspend rules.

Council also passed by unanimous vote, after voting to suspend rules, the following ordinances:

One authorizing the mayor as acting service director to advertise for bids for surface treating on streets and alleys according to specifications filed in the office of the city engineer.

AN ORDINANCE stating the number of members of the Circleville police department.

Another to require permits of City Planning Commission for erection of new buildings or additions or alterations to existing structures.

Ordinance to amend annual appropriation ordinance to include $1,218 from waterworks improvement fund to contract with Burgess and Nipple for services in extending gallery at water pumping station.

Amendment to annual appropriation ordinance to include $500 from water works operating fund for maintenance of water pumping station.

AN ORDINANCE granting authority to board of public utilities to advertise for bids for cast iron mains on Watt street, Atwater avenue, and Wilson street, and to connect mains on Park, Reber and Seyfert avenues.

An ordinance to appropriate $1,000 for the special police fund.

An ordinance prohibiting vehicles from making right or left turns at the intersection of Court and Main streets between 6 p. m. and midnight on Saturdays was referred to the safety committee.

A resolution authorizing the safety director to advertise for bids for laundry work at Berger hospital was passed unanimously.

One negative vote, that of Councilman Boyd Horn, was cast against an ordinance requiring anyone desiring to make an opening in streets, alleys and sidewalks to make application to city service director, pay a permit fee of one dollar and deposit $25 to guarantee restoration of the landscape. Penalties for failure to comply were fixed at $25 minimum and $100 maximum. The ordinance passed 6-1.

In all, 15 ordinances were read by Fred Nicholas, council clerk. When, at the end, President of Council Luther Bower inquired if there were more, Nicholas heaved a sigh and replied:

"I'm very glad to say no."

They told the farmer they were in the vicinity to visit a relative and were on their way back to Circleville. Later, when the filling stations were broken into, a Licking County deputy was told of their presence in the neighborhood.

The deputies checked back on the reported visit and obtained the names and addresses from the relative.

THE YOUTHS were picked up in their homes and taken to Pickaway County jail where they were questioned by Sheriff Radcliff, Chief McCrady and deputies from both counties.

that some Soviet move in the Berlin stalemate is imminent.

WESTERN officials in Berlin have indicated that they will not be surprised if the Soviets suddenly bring to an end the virtual siege which has alienated Berlin Germans and brought Allied retaliation, seriously injuring Soviet zone currency.

BERLIN, April 20—American and West German officials said today that Russia is seeking a way to end its unsuccessful blockade of Berlin without loss of face.

James W. Riddleberger, acting U. S. political adviser in Berlin, said: "It is quite likely that the Soviets realize the complete ineffectiveness of the Berlin siege and will seek a new tactic if the way is opened without sacrificing prestige."

All the reports appeared based on the obvious success of the Allied airlift and indications that the economy of the Soviet zone is suffering severely from the Allied counter-blockade.

MEANWHILE, Anglo-American sources in Frankfurt said the Western Allies are planning to abandon Berlin as their main occupation headquarters, without relinquishing their hold on the western sectors.

The British-licensed Berlin Telegram said that the new records established by the Allied airlift demonstrate that Berlin can be supplied better than in pre-blockade days by transport aircraft.

can go to the fire station at any time and look around. They will find the place spotless—Floors, equipment, everything. And if those boys can keep the fire station looking like that, they certainly can be depended on to take care of the fire alarm equipment."

Montgomery jumped up to agree with Anderson's statement. He went on:

"But I'd like to point out that this fire alarm system does not add a single point to cutting the fire (insurance) rate in Circleville. We are now in class 7, and that is pretty close to the cellar. We could raise it to class 6."

"We should seriously consider measures for getting the fire equipment and personnel to a point where the class could be raised. Because we are in class 7 we pay one-sixth more in fire rates than we would if we were in class 6."

PRESIDENT of Council broke in at this point to remind councilmen that the question of insurance rates was one to be taken up at some future time.

Referring to section 2 of the ordinance, Councilman Adkins pointed out that inspection of the boxes was unnecessary, because "the new system has an automatic control to take care of that. If anything goes wrong with the system anywhere a red light flashes on a panel in the fire station." He made a motion to have section 2 stricken out.

Cook jumped to his feet. Speaking slowly at first, he said he did not think the ringing of the bell could be divorced from the alarm system itself.

"The whole ordinance should be stricken out," he declared. His speech grew more rapid as he continued.

"I have yet to see the fireman who thinks the ringing of the bell would do any good. And since Mr. Adkins mentioned Reber avenue, I would like Mr. Adkins to tell me what the call number is for that street."

MONTGOMERY guffawed. "Reber avenue has no call number," he cried.

Cook's voice became louder. He pointed out that sounding the box location on the big bell would not mean a great deal more than sounding a general alarm would. This, he said, was because the alarm boxes occur at intervals close enough to make the location signal an exact warning.

"Why," he shouted, "if number 25 is sounded it could mean a fire anywhere between Guy Pettit's store and the south end elevator."

Cook quoted figures to show that the city has spent $2,784.45 on the fire alarm system, and "if a wire has to be strung to let the fire bell ring, we're going to spend more."

"Yet," he argued, his voice growing hoarse, "the town is not one-third covered. The system is entirely inadequate."

Cook advocated placing boxes on every other block. Money used for such a purpose would be better spent than for things like ringing the old fire bell, he said.

There was a moment of silence as he finished, then:

"Let 'er ring," drawled Councilman Ralph Wallace.

The motion to strike out section 2 was carried 6-1, with Wallace dissenting.

Vote on the ordinance was as follows: Adkins, Anderson, Brown, Horn and Montgomery—yes; Cook—no.

'Peeping Tom' Lacks Fear Of Police Guns

A persistent night-prowler in Circleville apparently refuses to be discouraged from his after-hour promenade.

According to Circleville police, Roderick List was called Monday night to investigate a "Peeping Tom" near the home of Policeman Charles W. Scott in Spring Hollow.

When List arrived on the scene, he spotted the prowler fleeing over a rise of ground behind the home, and sent three bullets after him. He said he shot only to frighten the man.

But the prowler evidently has nerves of steel, since Mack Wise of 363 East Franklin street reported Wednesday he had spotted a man fitting the same description prowling about his home Tuesday night.

Police Chief William F. McCrady said more drastic attempts to "discourage" the prowler from his profession will be employed.

'Payless' Cop Now To Work For Real Cash

The Circleville police force now consists of eight members, including the chief. Such was the decision of city council after consideration of an ordinance to that effect.

Principle effect of the ordinance will be to permit Patrolman Charles Scott to draw pay. He was skipped when the April 15 pay checks were being passed out, because Scott, although working as a regular patrolman, was not on the payroll as such.

Through an oversight council had appropriated enough funds to pay two extra members of the force, but failed to pass an ordinance creating openings for them.

The city fathers corrected the fault during Tuesday night's council meeting when they passed unanimously an ordinance to increase the force by one member. Rules were suspended to permit immediate passage.

One negative vote, that of Councilman Boyd Horn, was cast against an ordinance requiring anyone desiring to make an opening in streets, alleys and sidewalks to make application to city service director, pay a permit fee of one dollar and deposit $25 to guarantee restoration of the landscape. Penalties for failure to comply were fixed at $25 minimum and $100 maximum. The ordinance passed 6-1.

can go to the fire station at any time and look around. They will find the place spotless—Floors, equipment, everything. And if those boys can keep the fire station looking like that, they certainly can be depended on to take care of the fire alarm equipment."

Montgomery jumped up to agree with Anderson's statement. He went on:

"But I'd like to point out that this fire alarm system does not add a single point to cutting the fire (insurance) rate in Circleville. We are now in class 7, and that is pretty close to the cellar. We could raise it to class 6."

"We should seriously consider measures for getting the fire equipment and personnel to a point where the class could be raised. Because we are in class 7 we pay one-sixth more in fire rates than we would if we were in class 6."

PRESIDENT of Council broke in at this point to remind councilmen that the question of insurance rates was one to be taken up at some future time.

Referring to section 2 of the ordinance, Councilman Adkins pointed out that inspection of the boxes was unnecessary, because "the new system has an automatic control to take care of that. If anything goes wrong with the system anywhere a red light flashes on a panel in the fire station." He made a motion to have section 2 stricken out.

Cook jumped to his feet. Speaking slowly at first, he said he did not think the ringing of the bell could be divorced from the alarm system itself.

"The whole ordinance should be stricken out," he declared. His speech grew more rapid as he continued.

"I have yet to see the fireman who thinks the ringing of the bell would do any good. And since Mr. Adkins mentioned Reber avenue, I would like Mr. Adkins to tell me what the call number is for that street."

MONTGOMERY guffawed. "Reber avenue has no call number," he cried.

Cook's voice became louder. He pointed out that sounding the box location on the big bell would not mean a great deal more than sounding a general alarm would. This, he said, was because the alarm boxes occur at intervals close enough to make the location signal an exact warning.

"Why," he shouted, "if number 25 is sounded it could mean a fire anywhere between Guy Pettit's store and the south end elevator."

Cook quoted figures to show that the city has spent $2,764.45 on the fire alarm system, and "if a wire has to be strung to let the fire bell ring, we're going to spend more."

"Yet," he argued, his voice growing hoarse, "the town is not one-third covered. The system is entirely inadequate."

Cook advocated placing boxes on every other block. Money used for such a purpose would be better spent than for things like ringing the old fire bell, he said.

There was a moment of silence as he finished, then:

"Let 'er ring," drawled Councilman Ralph Wallace.

The motion to strike out section 2 was carried 6-1, with Wallace dissenting.

Vote on the ordinance was as follows: Adkins, Anderson, Brown, Horn and Montgomery—yes; Cook—no.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Friday in Pilgrim Holiness church, with the Rev. Alonzo Hill officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by direction of Deffenbaugh Funeral Home.

Friends may call in the Cassidy residence Thursday.

'Peeping Tom' Lacks Fear Of Police Guns

A persistent night-prowler in Circleville apparently refuses to be discouraged from his after-hour promenading.

According to Circleville police, Roderick List was called Monday night to investigate a "Peeping Tom" near the home of Policeman Charles W. Scott in Spring Hollow.

When List arrived on the scene, he spotted the prowler fleeing over a rise of ground behind the home, and sent three bullets after him. He said he shot only to frighten the man.

But the prowler evidently has nerves of steel, since Mack Wise of 363 East Franklin street reported Wednesday he had spotted a man fitting the same description prowling about his home Tuesday night.

Police Chief William F. McCrady said more drastic attempts to "discourage" the prowler from his profession will be employed.

'Payless' Cop Now To Work For Real Cash

The Circleville police force now consists of eight members, including the chief. Such was the decision of city council after consideration of an ordinance to that effect.

Principle effect of the ordinance will be to permit Patrolman Charles Scott to draw pay. He was skipped when the April 15 pay checks were being passed out, because Scott, although working as a regular patrolman, was not on the payroll as such.

Through an oversight council had appropriated enough funds to pay two extra members of the force, but failed to pass an ordinance creating openings for them.

The city fathers corrected the fault during Tuesday night's council meeting when they passed unanimously an ordinance to increase the force by one member. Rules were suspended to permit immediate passage.

Half-Million Needed To Fix Roads

County To Spend Third Of Amount

More than one-half million dollars will be needed in 1949 to put Pickaway County roads into tip-top shape, but the county will have less than a third of that amount to spend.

According to Henry McCrady, county engineer, $591,300 will be required this year to fix the county-operated roadways in "really good shape."

The engineer added that the feat will be impossible this year, since the county's share of the state gasoline tax distribution will be only approximately $180,000.

McCrady based his report as of April 1, and broke down the figures into $212,500 for treatment, repair and resurfacing of the roads, while an additional $378,800 will be needed to take care of the bridges and culverts.

THE ENGINEER pointed out that the county now operates more than 200 miles of county roadways, along with maintaining 2,389 bridges.

He said there are 146 bridges with spans greater than 20 feet, while 2,243 of the bridges were less than 20 feet long.

McCrady submitted the report to the county commissioners, who, with the insufficient funds at hand, probably will select those jobs most important for immediate repair.

Contracts for patching county roads will be opened by the commissioners at 1:30 p. m. on May 2.

Chamber Says Guthrie Bill To Cost $60 Million

COLUMBUS, April 20—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce has charged that the Guthrie bill, to substitute a gross receipts tax for the present three percent sales tax, would cost Ohioans $60 million a year in additional taxes.

The mere change from abandonment of the sales tax stamp plan, with its redemption of used stamps by charitable organizations, would bring in an estimated $8.8 million a year more than the present plan, the chamber admitted.

But, it contended, the bill of Sen. Emmett Guthrie (D-Coshocton) would increase taxes by removing the exemption on many new items.

These include gas, electric, phone and water bills, on cigarettes, beer, wine and liquor, on farm purchases of livestock and farm machinery, and on raw materials.

Even purchases by charitable institutions would be forced to pay the new tax, the chamber contended.

The chamber said the bill, if passed, would "put Ohio manufacturers at a serious competitive disadvantage as compared to other states," thus jeopardizing "thousands of jobs."

The chamber said new taxes on utility bills would total an estimated $13,481,000; on cigarettes, beer, wine and liquor $16,425,000, and on raw materials "at least $25 million."

Tax Problem Must Be Faced

WASHINGTON, April 20—Senate Finance Chairman George (D) Ga., has predicted that Congress "must face the tax problem very late this year or early in 1950."

The chairman of the Senate's

George said it will not be possible until then to appraise what is happening in the nation's economy from the tax revenue standpoint.

JUSTICE IN BERMUDA

WITNESSES of the process of law in the courts of Bermuda are much impressed by the quiet dignity of the proceedings and by the solemn atmosphere engendered by the robes and wigs of the lawyers and presiding judges.

What is called the supreme court in Bermuda is not a court of final appeal, as in this country, but the one which handles criminal and civil cases of more importance than those taken to the court of a magistrate. The chief justice wears a scarlet robe when presiding in a criminal case, and a black one for civil cases. All jurists and lawyers wear wigs of various degrees of elaborateness.

This background lends an air of solemnity to the traditionally formal proceedings, and the prosecuting counsel maintains this formality by his quiet tactics. No melodramatic methods of breaking down the prisoner's morale are permitted. Major D. Huxley, the counsel for the Crown in one case, said:

"The Crown is as much duty bound to produce any evidence in favor of the accused as against him. The function of counsel for the Crown is not to get a conviction, but to present the whole picture."

This cool, impersonal attitude on the part of the prosecution, when sincerely maintained, doubtless adds as much to the soberness of British court proceedings as do wigs, scarlet robes, or other external trappings. Both help, however. The ends of justice are well served by an atmosphere conducive to its attainment.

IRISH REPUBLIC

THE Republic of Ireland is now formally established, utterly free of all ties with the British Crown. Actually there is a difference of opinion as to whether the 780-year thralldom under British ties really is ended. Six counties of the Emerald Isle, constituting Northern Ireland, remain a part of the United Kingdom. The Irish political group led by former Premier Eamon de Valera demands that the two parts of Ireland be re-united, claiming Ireland is not really free until this is accomplished. Inasmuch as the northern counties apparently prefer the British Crown, the reunion of all Ireland is not a likely prospect for the near future.

One more republic has now been added to the family of the free nations. Its creation is part of the world-wide tendency of discontented peoples to break away from the ties which they blame for their discontent, and to set up nations of their own. It is greatly to the credit of the British government that no effort was made toward the forceful suppression of the Irish move for severance. The British attitude now may do little to erase from Irish minds the memory of the bloody suppression of the Irish revolt in 1916, but it is a sign to all of the world that democracy, in the free portions of the globe, is a real thing.

These Days

A number of notable speeches were delivered at the mid-century convocation at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but most of them were overshadowed by Winston Churchill's personality. Among the addresses that seemed underplayed was that of Harold Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, who approached American problems from the standpoint of a nation with a continuing philosophy of life.

After analyzing the conflict among various ideas of life and government, he applied his conclusions to Asia, as follows:

"Relating this inescapable situation to one specific problem before us, we must conclude that we are foolhardy to contribute by our inaction, or by our withdrawal of aid, to the Communist domination of China. We should move, and move promptly, to bolster the southern half of China, to assist by materials and by counsel in maintaining the independence of Canton, and of the four southern provinces of Kwantung, Kwangsi, Fukien, Hunan and of Formosa and Hong Kong."

The argument usually made by the State Department is that it is impossible to support a government ridden by graft. It is the same kind of argument as justified the support of Red Fascism to the tune of $11 million and the rejection of Spanish Fascism. It is the same kind of argument which makes it right to support British imperialism in the Middle East but to oppose Dutch imperialism in Indonesia. In a word, it is a fatuous argument unrelated to reality.

After all, the so-called corruption of the Nationalist government is a question of the form and character of government. Are we to enforce our concepts of government upon other peoples? We provide Marshall Plan aid to Imperialist Holland, to Socialistic England, to France whose economic and political system is beyond description in accurate terms.

Nor is the argument sound that we need only aid Europe and that there can be security for us in an Asia completely under Russian control. I suggested to Churchill recently that Russia will raise at least 40 divisions among the Chinese to police the satellite countries in Europe. He pooh-poohed the suggestion, yet nothing is more likely. For some of the Russian satellites and puppets are becoming recalcitrant and it is sound policy for the Kremlin to use Asiatics to keep Europeans in line. Lenin did it when he employed Mongols and Burials in the early days of the Revolution to keep Russians in line.

So when Stassen proposes support to the government in South China, he is sound. He says:

"Giving due consideration to European needs and to our own total economic situation and capacity, we should regularly invest a portion of our resources in Asia for the resistance to Communism. The amount should be a minimum of a billion dollars a year. It should be administered on an Asia-wide approach, preferably in relation to local provinces and individual projects and in underwriting private endeavor, rather than being funneled through any central, major government."

The more it's examined, the more this local option rent control looks like a smart piece of politics. How many city or state governments have the nerve to lift controls in their own back yards?

SOME people want nothing to do with lies; others want nothing of lie detectors.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

"And there is no other way for me," Hilde went on, "than to be happy for existence, and for Tom's existence." She laughed softly. "I laugh that you should know my grandparents were immigrants. I thought there was nothing of the old language in my fine American speech." She stopped sewing, and rested her head on the back of the chair. "I am so lucky. I miss the shop because so many of my customers remind me of my good fortune. They make life too tight, too short—like making a dress too tight and too short. You have to make room for emergencies, for expansion and shrinkage, for the good things and the bad things. I know that the girls in the shop laughed at me. They thought I was a little crazy! How pleasant this is. You were always so nice, so considerate."

Beatrice smiled. "Thank you, Hilde. You have more friends than you realize in spite of being a 'little crazy.' You'll never have to worry about making friends. They'll beat a path to your door as I have wherever you are, because they know you have something to give them, because you haven't sold life short. Because you're squarely in the center, and no adversity will shake you. You've calculated those allowances too well."

The girl looked at her with a demureness that was as natural as the color of her lips. "You make me wise when I am not, but perhaps it is wisdom once in awhile to do foolish things—to buy a red hat you can't afford because it's so gay and wonderful you can't go away and leave it mourning after you; and sometimes I burn the potatoes." She opened her eyes wide. "It is time for lunch and you are staying, of course."

The child came in, and he was scrubbed until he looked polished before he came to the table. The lunch was delicious. Hilde had made the soup and the bread. Beatrice could not remember when she had eaten homemade bread before, or when she had tasted anything so good. Nor had she the least desire to leave when the dishes were washed and dried, and the little boy had been put to bed for his nap.

"This has been so much fun," Hilde said when Beatrice was ready to leave.

"Is there anything you want?" Beatrice asked.

Hilde pressed her hands, those capable hands of hers that could do anything, against Beatrice's.

"What is there for me to want? I have everything." "More than you need," Beatrice told her gravely. "It overflows into others and replenishes them. Thank you, Hilde."

She sighed deeply as she went down the narrow path to the car that would take her to Mrs. Ramey. The fact that Mrs. Ramey's house had far too much furniture in it pressed upon Beatrice's consciousness more keenly today than usual when Jenny, the maid, admitted her into the vast hall, and told her that Mrs. Ramey was in the upstairs library and expecting her. And as the timid Jenny took her coat, Beatrice pondered what she had heard many times—that the only reason Jenny stayed with Mrs. Ramey was because the old woman "had something on Jenny." Though no one would probably ever know, it was certainly true that Jenny did not remain either out of affection for her employer, or for a good salary. For it was perfectly obvious to anyone that Jenny was afraid of Mrs. Ramey and it was well known, for Jenny had told it, that she received far less compensation for her work than any of her friends in similar positions. As her thoughts went from Jenny to the house again, it occurred to Beatrice that the reason for the overcrowding of furniture was in keeping with Mrs. Ramey's character. She would not give anything away.

As she mounted the dreary stairs she wondered how many years it had been since the house had been decorated. More important, she wondered how long ago it had been since it had been opened to the air and sun. It smelled damp and stuffy. The long draperies, of a nauseating green color, forbid the willing sunlight to enter just as Beatrice thought, the cheerless entrance discouraged guests. The stone in her heart seemed to be growing, weighing her down until she felt she was suffocating. Her feet dragged on the last steps. When at last she stood on the second floor, she stopped and closed her eyes—a brief respite from these dark walls and the cold fishy eyes of Mrs. Ramey's forebears that looked down at her from their portraits. Why in heaven's name was she so proud of them?

And then she thought, it's all gone, the peace and joy I knew from sitting in Hilde's rocking chair and eating her good food and seeing the purity in her face.

Beside her I am a pauper. And I am dirty because this house makes me feel dirty, not physically but spiritually, because I've sold my soul to the avarice and lovelessness it represents. You and I, Porter, both of us. We let our ambition lead us to jail, to one not knowing where the other is, to David, to Bonnie, to ruin—and everyone calls us a success. We have brought this wreckage, this bitterness and estrangement upon ourselves. God help us.

Mrs. Ramey was sitting in a chair beside the desk when Beatrice went in. Somehow the room had never seemed so large, or Mrs. Ramey so forbidding as now. Beatrice felt herself shrink inside her clothes as the old woman's darting eyes indicated her impatience at having to wait.

"I thought you'd never come, Beatrice." She sat so stiffly that only her lips and eyes moved. Not a muscle moved in her one hand that held the cane, or the other that lay on the arm of the ancient chair that was as imperial in appearance as Mrs. Ramey herself.

Beatrice sat in the chair before the desk. "I'm sorry, but I didn't say any specific time."

Mrs. Ramey looked her over very carefully from her trim legs, up past the becoming red suit, to her face, so unusually pale that the brightness of her mouth was accentuated, and to the top of her dark head. "You're not looking well, Beatrice. No, you're not looking well at all."

She knows something, Beatrice thought. And she's trying to find out if I know.

"There's nothing wrong with me," Beatrice insisted. "And I'm ready to help you."

"Oh, yes. Yes, of course. The guest list and all those irritating details attached to having a few women in to tea."

"If you feel that way about it, why do you bother with it?" She pushed her hair back entirely unconscious that the wind had blown it into a state of charming disorder. She thought, if only when I'm with her I could stop exploring my feelings and stop being honest about them. Why am I so porous and vulnerable? Why can't I be more callous; more insensitive? But I don't want to be!

Mrs. Ramey so intensely disliked direct questions that she rarely answered them. One who would not explain her motives, Beatrice thought, could never be considered in the wrong regardless of how a thing turned out.

Election of a dentist as president of Paraguay has inspired our Republicans. Next time they are going to try novacaine.

But it was nice of him to wire his opponent: "Now that didn't hurt a bit did it?"

All he has to do is get up before his legislature say "open wide please" and lean forward with the drill. They'll give him anything he wants.

It's unusual to find a dentist in public office. Their training is more for private office.

MacKinlay Kantor, making a round of military flying fields for a series of articles he is preparing, alleges that he encountered one Air Force captain who was sixty-one years old. "Yes, sir," boasted the captain. "I'm the oldest junior officer in the whole Air Corps, and if you'd like to know why, here's my story."

"During World War Two I was based for months on one island where the C. O. delighted in getting us out of our beds every night for an 'alert.' After it had happened thirty-two nights in succession, I got a great idea. I got hold of a tame orang-utan that hung outside the canteen begging for food, dressed him in an officer's uniform, and trained him painstakingly to run to my plane whenever the 'alert' sounded, climb in, close the plexiglass dome over his head, switch on the engine, turn over the propeller, and keep his hand on the throttle until he heard the 'all clear.'"

"It worked like a charm for weeks. One night, however, the 'all clear' never came. I jumped out of bed, dressed and rushed over to the field, just in time to see my plane, with the orang-utan at the stick, take off in perfect alignment with the others. When the last plane zoomed into the sky, there were only two people left on the whole field: me and the C. O. He gave me a withering look but never said a word.

"Well, sir, that's why I'm the oldest captain in the corps. And I wouldn't mind a bit—if it wasn't for the fact that that

Only Nine Women Currently Holding Seats in Congress | Just 45 Women Have Served In Congress in 29 Years!

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—If all the women of America got together and decided to vote only for their own sex, they could run the country! Does that make the male species shudder?

Have no fear—yet, men! The women—God bless them—apparently think the country is best administered by the stronger sex.

The women may be the first to dispute this, but the Congress of the United States provides ample proof that this is still a man's world despite women's political emancipation almost 29 years ago.

A survey reveals that of the 531 members elected to the House and Senate, at no time have more than 11 women ever served at one time. Since 1917, when the first woman took her seat in Congress, only 45 women have served.

Yet, the Census Bureau says there are more women than men aged 21 and over, all of them potential voters. The latest estimate shows 48,155,000 women and 46,486,000 men old enough to vote.

The answer? Ask the women, men, but don't press them too hard on it. They might get ideas. Now for the proof. The 81st Congress is composed of 435 representatives and 96 senators. In the House, there are 427 men and only eight women. In the Senate, there is one lone representative of the weaker sex, Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, compared to 95 men.

This has been the situation ever since the first woman, Miss

Senator Margaret Chase Smith

Jeanette Rankin, of Missoula, Mont., a Republican, was elected to the House in 1916. She was a suffragette who served two terms, 1917-19 and 1941-43.

Miss Rankin was elected to the 64th Congress. There were no women in the 66th Congress (1919-21), but from then on women have been represented in all Congresses.

The greatest number of women ever to serve in Congress was 11, all in the House. They served during the 79th Congress (1945-47). In the past two decades, the number has fluctuated between seven and 11.

Only six women ever have been elected or appointed to the Senate. Only two were elected to full terms. One never was sworn in or seated. One served only two days. The remainder served out unexpired terms.

The honor of being the first woman to serve in the Senate goes to Mrs. Rebecca L. Felton of Georgia, who was appointed Oct. 2, 1922, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas E. Watson. Although only a few women have served in Congress, their role in many cases has been a distinguished one.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, dean of women members, has served with distinction since 1924. For several years she was chairman of the House labor committee and is now chairman of the House administration committee.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, dean of women Republican members, has served since 1925. She was chairman of the House veterans committee in 1947 and 1948 and is now its top-ranking minority member.

Of the nine women seated in the present Congress, five are Republicans, four are Democrats. Their interests are varied. Two are specialists in foreign affairs—Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas (Cal.) and Mrs. Frances P. Bolton (Ohio)—both House veterans.

Mrs. Reva Beck Eason of Utah is a former Salt Lake City judge now serving her first term. Another first-term is Mrs. Cecile M. Harden (Ind.), former school teacher. Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse (Conn.) is a veteran Democratic worker who served a House term in 1945-47, and has returned, while Mrs. Katherine St. George (N. Y.) is serving her second term in the House.

JUSTICE IN BERMUDA

WITNESSES of the process of law in the courts of Bermuda are much impressed by the quiet dignity of the proceedings and by the solemn atmosphere engendered by the robes and wigs of the lawyers and presiding judges.

What is called the supreme court in Bermuda is not a court of final appeal, as in this country, but the one which handles criminal and civil cases of more importance than those taken to the court of a magistrate. The chief justice wears a scarlet robe when presiding in a criminal case, and a black one for civil cases. All jurists and lawyers wear wigs of various degrees of elaborateness.

This background lends an air of solemnity to the traditionally formal proceedings, and the prosecuting counsel maintains this formality by his quiet tactics. No melodramatic methods of breaking down the prisoner's morale are permitted. Major David Huxley, the counsel for the Crown in one case, said:

"The Crown is as much duty bound to produce any evidence in favor of the accused as against him. The function of counsel for the Crown is not to get a conviction, but to present the whole picture."

This cool, impersonal attitude on the part of the prosecution, when sincerely maintained, doubtless adds as much to the soberness of British court proceedings as do wigs, scarlet robes, or other external trappings. Both help, however. The ends of justice are well served by an atmosphere conducive to its attainment.

IRISH REPUBLIC

THE Republic of Ireland is now formally established, utterly free of all ties with the British Crown. Actually there is a difference of opinion as to whether the 780-year thralldom under British ties really is ended. Six counties of the Emerald Isle, constituting Northern Ireland, remain a part of the United Kingdom. The Irish political group led by former Premier Eamon de Valera demands that the two parts of Ireland be re-united, claiming Ireland is not really free until this is accomplished. Inasmuch as the northern counties apparently prefer the British Crown, the reunion of all Ireland is not a likely prospect for the near future.

One more republic has now been added to the family of the free nations. Its creation is part of the world-wide tendency of discontented peoples to break away from the ties which they blame for their discontent, and to set up nations of their own. It is greatly to the credit of the British government that no effort was made toward the forceful suppression of the Irish move for severance. The British attitude now may do little to erase from Irish minds the memory of the bloody suppression of the Irish revolt in 1916, but it is a sign to all of the world that democracy, in the free portions of the globe, is a real thing.

These Days

A number of notable speeches were delivered at the mid-century convocation at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but most of them were overshadowed by Winston Churchill's personality. Among the addresses that seemed underplayed was that of Harold Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, who approached American problems from the standpoint of a nation with a continuing philosophy of life.

After analyzing the conflict among various ideas of life and government, he applied his conclusions to Asia, as follows:

"Relating this inescapable situation to one specific problem before us, we must conclude that we are foolhardy to contribute by our inaction, or by our withdrawal of aid, to the Communist domination of China. We should move, and move promptly, to bolster the southern half of China, to assist by materials and by counsel in maintaining the independence of Canton, and of the four southern provinces of Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Fukien, Hunan and of Formosa and Hong Kong."

The argument usually made by the State Department is that it is impossible to support a government ridden by graft. It is the same kind of argument as justified the support of Red Fascism to the tune of $11 million and the rejection of Spanish Fascism. It is the same kind of argument which makes it right to support British imperialism in the Middle East but to oppose Dutch imperialism in Indonesia. In a word, it is a fatuous argument unrelated to reality.

After all, the so-called corruption of the Nationalist government is a question of the form and character of government. Are we to enforce our concepts of government upon other peoples? We provide Marshall Plan aid to Imperialist Holland, to Socialistic England, to France whose economic and political system is beyond description in accurate terms.

Nor is the argument sound that we need only aid Europe and that there can be security for us in an Asia completely under Russian control. I suggested to Churchill recently that Russia will raise at least 40 divisions among the Chinese to police the satellite countries in Europe. He pooh-poohed the suggestion, yet nothing is more likely. For some of the Russian satellites and puppets are becoming recalcitrant and it is sound policy for the Kremlin to use Asiatics to keep Europeans in line. Lenin did it when he employed Mongols and Burials in the early days of the Revolution to keep Russians in line.

So when Stassen proposes support to the government in South China, he is sound. He says:

"Giving due consideration to European needs and to our own total economic situation and capacity, we should regularly invest a portion of our resources in Asia for the resistance to Communism. The amount should be a minimum of a billion dollars a year. It should be administered on an Asia-wide approach, preferably in relation to local provinces and individual projects and in underwriting private endeavor, rather than being funneled through any central, major government."

The more it's examined, the more this local option rent control looks like a smart piece of politics. How many city or state governments have the nerve to lift controls in their own back yards?

SOME people want nothing to do with lies; others want nothing of lie detectors.

KIDNAPING HOAX DETAILED

Mother Admits $33,000 Spent Betting On Ponies

Editor's Note: Mrs. Mary Goodman, who confessed to Beverly Hills, Cal., police that she staged the "kidnaping" and "ransoming" of her five-year-old son Joey to cover up horse racing losses from her husband, declares in the following article that "gambling fever caused it all."

BY MRS. MARY GOODMAN
REIDSVILLE, N. C., April 20 —It was the horses. The gambling fever caused it all. I used to bet as many as eight long shots a day at the 100 dollar windows at the California tracks with the money that my husband, Joe, had given me to keep. I love my husband. He was always a good man—so very kind. My only hope now is that he will take me back. I am praying for my husband's forgiveness so we can be reunited. He said to me on the telephone from Beverly Hills yesterday:

"HOW COULD you do such a thing? Why didn't you let me know? I could have forgiven you."

Funny, I guess it was my husband who taught me how to bet. We had $33,000 and we put it in a safety deposit box in my name. I used to bet small. Then the itch to take a big chance got into my blood when several two-dollar bets paid off in hundreds.

But then I began losing, and it all began to add up. When I had lost $1,200 of the money from the safe deposit box I decided to go into business to recoup.

I bought a novelty shop, but it was no good. In the first ten days I didn't get a single customer.

I took more money from the box to put in a line of evening clothes for rent.

Later I moved the business to Sunset Boulevard and invested still more money. All the while I was also taking money from the box in the hope that with one big bet—like $1,000—I could get it all back.

One day two very tough looking men came to the house and asked for my husband. They said he owed them some money. They didn't say they were bookies or just who they were.

Then Joe told me he had to have $3,500.

I NEARLY went crazy with fear. I went down and counted the money in the box and found only $1,200. I wanted to kill myself, but I knew I couldn't be separated from Joe.

I thought I would fake a robbery but on thinking it over I decided no one would believe me since the money was in the bank. Then I decided on the kidnaping idea to hide that I had lost almost all the $33,000.

After it was all over I got my husband to put me on a plane for Reidsville with our boy.

I was glad to get out of that terrible, terrible town of Los Angeles.

I decided to tell the police in California that I made the fake kidnaping because my conscience bothered me.

I haven't been able to sleep or eat and I feel sick. I've been taking sleeping tablets to try to get some sleep.

I pray my husband will forgive me. He's a wonderful man. He's never done a wrong thing in his life.

Ohioans Buying More Savings Bonds, Report

COLUMBUS, April 20—Ohioans are putting more and more money into U. S. savings bonds as the months go by.

Loring L. Gelbach, chairman of the Ohio Savings Bond Committee, announced today that Series E bond sales during March totaled $22,993,980.

Last month's purchase of bonds marked up a $3,266,572 increase over sales in March of last year. It was also the tenth consecutive month that bond sales had increased over figures in the corresponding month of the year before.

Gelbach's announcement followed a dinner here attended by volunteers in the savings bonds division for Ohio. Governor Lausche served as official host.

Earlier, the volunteers announced plans for an opportunity bond drive beginning May 16 and extending through June 30. The quota for Ohio has been set at $62,630,000.

5th Set Twins Just Too Much

WAREHAM, Mass., April 20—It was too much for Joseph Lopes when his wife gave birth to twins in a hospital here yesterday.

It was the 29-year-old wife's fifth set of twins in eight years, and when Lopes heard the news he collapsed.

The new babies weighed 5 pounds, 15 ounces, and six pounds, one ounce. They raised the count of heads in the Lopes family to 13 children.

Lopes is an unemployed laborer. When a nurse brought him the news, "twins," he fell into the chair. The nurse gave him a whiff of smelling salts.

"What's fertility-level check planting, and why will it give me more corn and fewer nubbins?" a fellow asked me one day.

"Well, you know, an ordinary planter checks either 2, 3, or 4 kernels per hill—7,840, 11,760, or 15,680 kernels per acre. But suppose your soil's fertility level requires a kernel population somewhere between those figures?"

"Right now, I'm just out of luck," he said.

"No, you're not. With the new, high-speed, clutchless McCormick 'population planter', you can plant anywhere between those 7, 11, or 15 thousand. There are 18 different speeds to give you any in-between rate. And you can drill or hill-drop to any per-acre population, too."

"Sounds good to me . . . and I like the planting units in front, too, where I can watch them and the marker-track at the same time."

"To say nothing of handy fingertip Farmall Touch-Control to lift and lower the planters," I reminded him.

"From now on it's more corn and less nubbins for me, too. Order me a Farmall C corn planter right now!"

KIDNAPING HOAX DETAILED

Mother Admits $33,000 Spent Betting On Ponies

Editor's Note: Mrs. Mary Goodman, who confessed to Beverly Hills, Cal., police that she staged the "kidnapping" and "ransoming" of her five-year-old son Joey to cover up horse racing losses from her husband, declares in the following article that "gambling fever caused it all."

BY MRS. MARY GOODMAN
REIDSVILLE, N. C., April 20—It was the horses. The gambling fever caused it all.

I used to bet as many as eight long shots a day at the 100 dollar windows at the California tracks with the money that my husband, Joe, had given me to keep.

I love my husband. He was always a good man—so very kind. My only hope now is that he will take me back. I am praying for my husband's forgiveness so we can be reunited.

He said to me on the telephone from Beverly Hills yesterday:

"HOW COULD you do such a thing? Why didn't you let me know? I could have forgiven you."

Funny. I guess it was my husband who taught me how to bet. We had $33,000 and we put it in a safety deposit box in my name. I used to bet small.

ROADS ONCE WERE RUTTED

Many Stagecoach Taverns Still Dot Ohio Landscape

COLUMBUS, April 20 — Famous stagecoach taverns of yesterday still dot Ohio's landscape. Some still continue to operate as eating establishments, while others have been set up as tourist attractions.

Many are located on modern highways that began as rutted, dusty stagecoach roads. Some taverns were important in the history-making of Ohio and the country.

The Stadium Hotel, Cleveland, was the scene of many important political addresses made by such personalities as President Andrew Johnson and General U. S. Grant.

Our House, Gallipolis, built in 1819, entertained many distinguished visitors including Lafayette and Louis Philippe of France. The Golden Lamb, Lebanon, housed such notables as Charles Dickens and Presidents Adams, Van Buren, Harrison, Hayes, McKinley and Harding.

Locust Lodge, Middlebourne, which is still operated by descendants of William Penn, was the favorite stopping place for Henry Clay.

Mother Going On Murder Trial

RAVENNA, April 20 — Mrs. Barbara McVeigh was to go on trial in Portage County common pleas court today on a charge of first-degree murder.

The Ravenna woman is expected to plea insanity at the time she allegedly drowned her two sons, Malcolm, 5, and David, 2 months, in a tub of scalding water.

A panel of three judges will hear the case. Sitting with Portage County Judge Blake C. Cook will be Judges Lynn B. Griffith of Trumbull County and Hugh Hewitt of Ashtabula County.

Pope Questions U.S. Admiral

VATICAN CITY, April 20 — Pope Pius XII granted a long audience this week to Rear Adm. J. A. Clark, commander of the U. S. Fourth Carrier Fleet.

Admiral Clark said afterward the pope appeared deeply interested in the U. S. fleet and asked many technical questions on Navy maneuvers, U. S. naval power and U. S. seamen.

Admiral Clark's flagship, the Philippine Sea, is presently stationed off Naples. Mrs. Clark, the admiral's wife, also was received by the pope.

ing the National Road—now Route 40—three taverns went into business. One was the Pine Tree Inn, Old Washington, and the others were Headley Inn, Zanesville, which has been serving travelers since 1802, and Colonial Inn, Old Washington, in operation since 1805.

The Brecksville Inn, Brecksville, was built in 1839, and is unusual because it was put together with black walnut siding three feet wide and handmade nails and wooden pegs.

Cross Keys Tavern, Chillicothe, was built in 1797, and became famous as a meeting place for stockmen and drovers. It went out of business in 1860.

Hunt Tavern, Springfield, was built on the site of Simon Kenton's first home in Ohio. Stagecoach Tavern, Coshocton, was the center of festivities during the days of canal traffic.

Dunham Tavern, Cleveland, still continues to serve food and drink. It is noted for an old stone smokehouse, and the many pioneer relics from all parts of the Western Reserve. Rider Tavern, Painesville, was built in 1818 and modeled after Washington's Mt. Vernon home.

Two taverns that were important on stage runs into Cleveland were Stone Tavern, Poland, and Singletary House, Streetsboro. Stone Tavern, also called Sparrow Tavern, was built in 1804. Singletary House went up in 1828.

Buxton Tavern, Granville, has been a dining place since 1812.

Suspects Held For Trio Of Small Holdups

COLUMBUS, April 20 — Columbus police picked up two small-time suspects early today and slated them for quick arraignment.

They were 19-year-old Edgar Saylers, found behind the meat counter in a grocery about 3 a. m., and Fremont Anderson, 30, arrested in a filling station about 12:45 a. m., half an hour after City Bus Driver Clyde Steele was robbed of $56.

Anderson was picked up in an auto answering the description of the robbery car.

A patrolman arrested Saylers when he found the window in the grocery broken. Saylers had only three dollars in his possession at the time of his arrest. That was just the amount the cash register contained before he entered the store.

GAS

You can walk through a field in Indiana—or Arkansas, or Ohio—and never realize that you are standing over one of America's busiest highways, the Big Inch Pipe Line System.

Yet through this "highway" natural gas is being transported day and night, 365 days a year. Texas Eastern's pipe lines provide an efficient and economical way—the only way—to transport this valuable cargo over a distance of more than 1,300 miles.

To carry the most traffic a highway must be smooth and wide and free from traffic jams. The 600-man pipe line staff of Texas Eastern's system maintain just such a "highway."

Gas traveling under high pressure is slowed up by the slightest dirt or roughness in the pipe. Trained crews clean the Inch lines constantly to keep them at peak efficiency, to make the "highway" smooth.

Texas Eastern engineers have done the job of making the "highway" wide by combining the Big Inch and Little Big Inch pipe lines into one integrated system.

Preventing traffic jams is the task of dispatchers at three strategically located points from Texas to Pennsylvania. They control pressures and deliveries, keep the natural gas "traffic" moving at a constant speed of 15 miles per hour.

The heart of this great transportation system is the chain of 21 compressor stations serving the lines every 50 miles. All the stations have been built within the last two years. They are located in seven states, and each one of them is a community enterprise.

In the operation of these stations and its pipe line system, Texas Eastern has become a new citizen of your community. We welcome the opportunity to share in your community life and to tell you, in this message, about the work we are doing.

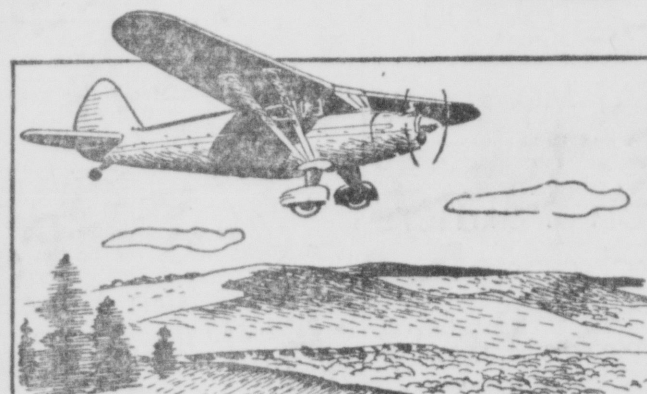

BIG INCH is a busy highway

IF natural gas could be carried in trucks...

It would take 70,000 big tank trucks to carry the number of cubic feet of gas that the Big Inch Pipe Line System is carrying every day. Running through ten states from Texas to New Jersey, Texas Eastern's two pipe lines are an important part of the nation's 250,000 miles of natural gas lines, a network larger than all the trunk line railroads put together. Today the Big Inch and Little Big Inch pipe lines are underground "highways" that can carry over half a billion cubic feet of gas a day.

Traffic Policemen for natural gas

TEXAS Eastern's dispatchers and compressor station operators regulate the flow of gas on the 1300-mile route of the Big Inch System. Their traffic lights are pressure gauges; their rule book is the weather. In twenty-one communities, in Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, they are on the job every minute night and day to keep the Big Inch "highway" open for its natural gas traffic.

Air Patrol—once a week aerial watchmen fly over every mile of the Inch lines

LIKE highway experts, Texas Eastern engineers keep close track of "road" conditions on the Big Inch system. Air observers constantly report signs of possible leaks or washouts, help prevent interruptions in the operation of the lines.

To the hundreds of communities through which the Inch lines pass, these aerial patrolmen are a visible sign of the underground pipe lines which link the nation from the Gulf to the Atlantic.

Many Stagecoach Taverns Still Dot Ohio Landscape

COLUMBUS, April 20 — Famous stagecoach taverns of yesterday still dot Ohio's landscape. Some still continue to operate as eating establishments, while others have been set up as tourist attractions.

Many are located on modern highways that began as rutted, dusty stagecoach roads. Some taverns were important in the history-making of Ohio and the country.

The Stadium Hotel, Cleveland, was the scene of many important political addresses made by such personalities as President Andrew Johnson and General U. S. Grant.

Our House, Gallipolis, built in 1819, entertained many distinguished visitors including Lafayette and Louis Philippe of France. The Golden Lamb, Lebanon, housed such notables as Charles Dickens and Presidents Adams, Van Buren, Harrison, Hayes, McKinley and Harding.

Locust Lodge, Middlebourne, which is still operated by descendants of William Penn, was the favorite stopping place for Henry Clay.

THE RED BRICK tavern, Lafayette, was open for business in 1837 and prepared food for many presidents and other dignitaries.

A panel of three judges will hear the case. Sitting with Portage County Judge Blake C. Cook will be Judges Lynn B. Griffith of Trumbull County and Hugh Hewitt of Ashtabula County.

Pope Questions U.S. Admiral

VATICAN CITY, April 20 — Pope Pius XII granted a long audience this week to Rear Adm. J. A. Clark, commander of the U. S. Fourth Carrier Fleet.

Admiral Clark said afterward the pope appeared deeply interested in the U. S. fleet and asked many technical questions on Navy maneuvers, U. S. naval power and U. S. seamen.

Admiral Clark's flagship, the Philippine Sea, is presently stationed off Naples. Mrs. Clark, the admiral's wife, also was received by the pope.

Suspects Held For Trio Of Small Holdups

COLUMBUS, April 20 — Columbus police picked up two small-time suspects early today and slated them for quick arraignment.

They were 19-year-old Edgar Saylers, found behind the meat counter in a grocery about 3 a. m., and Fremont Anderson, 30, arrested in a filling station about 12:45 a. m., half an hour after City Bus Driver Clyde Steele was robbed of $56.

Steele said as he stepped from his bus at the end of the line, a man got out of an auto and confronted him with a .32 calibre pistol and a 12-inch dagger. Steele told police he turned over all the bus company's money.

Anderson was picked up in an auto answering the description of the robbery car.

A patrolman arrested Saylers when he found the window in the grocery broken. Saylers had only three dollars in his possession at the time of his arrest. That was just the amount the cash register contained before he entered the store.

GAS

You can walk through a field in Indiana—or Arkansas, or Ohio—and never realize that you are standing over one of America's busiest highways, the Big Inch Pipe Line System.

Yet through this "highway" natural gas is being transported day and night, 365 days a year. Texas Eastern's pipe lines provide an efficient and economical way—the only way—to transport this valuable cargo over a distance of more than 1,300 miles.

To carry the most traffic a highway must be smooth and wide and free from traffic jams. The 600-man pipe line staff of Texas Eastern's system maintain just such a "highway."

Gas traveling under high pressure is slowed up by the slightest dirt or roughness in the pipe. Trained crews clean the inch lines constantly to keep them at peak efficiency, to make the "highway" smooth.

Texas Eastern engineers have done the job of making the "highway" wide by combining the Big Inch and Little Big Inch pipe lines into one integrated system.

Preventing traffic jams is the task of dispatchers at three strategically located points from Texas to Pennsylvania. They control pressures and deliveries, keep the natural gas "traffic" moving at a constant speed of 15 miles per hour.

The heart of this great transportation system is the chain of 21 compressor stations serving the lines every 50 miles. All the stations have been built within the last two years. They are located in seven states, and each one of them is a community enterprise.

In the operation of these stations and its pipe line system, Texas Eastern has become a new citizen of your community. We welcome the opportunity to share in your community life and to tell you, in this message, about the work we are doing.

BIG INCH is a busy highway

IF natural gas could be carried in trucks . . .

It would take 70,000 big tank trucks to carry the number of cubic feet of gas that the Big Inch Pipe Line System is carrying every day. Running through ten states from Texas to New Jersey, Texas Eastern's two pipe lines are an important part of the nation's 250,000 miles of natural gas lines, a network larger than all the trunk line railroads put together. Today the Big Inch and Little Big Inch pipe lines are underground "highways" that can carry over half a billion cubic feet of gas a day.

Air Patrol — once a week aerial watchmen fly over every mile of the Inch lines

LIKE highway experts, Texas Eastern engineers keep close track of "road" conditions on the Big Inch system. Air observers constantly report signs of possible leaks or washouts, help prevent interruptions in the operation of the lines.

These Days

"Clearly the Marshall Plan in Europe has been the most significant single right thing we have done since the end of the war. It is high time that we have a parallel MacArthur plan in Asia."

One of our major difficulties in the pursuit of policy is that the American people have not yet caught up with the role that we actually have assumed in the world. Whether the people approve of that role is another matter. Whether they would have approved of it, had they known the truth, while it was in the making at a dozen international conferences is neither here nor there. The historic fact is that the United States has, since 1939, become a vast empire.

Such a position involves a universal program and policy. The Monroe Doctrine and the Open Door Policy in China seemed at one time permanent, but they were at most regional programs. "Freedom of the seas" came closest to a universal policy. Otherwise, we pursued half-and-miss relationships, generally, but not always, following Great Britain. Our new situation and the decay of the British Empire force upon us a new role for which we are not ready. Lacking this, we suffered so severe a defeat in China.

4 HARNESS RACING EVENTS READY

Another Free Matinee Set For Fairgrounds Sunday

Another free matinee of harness racing has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon at Pickaway Fairgrounds here.

George W. VanCamp, spokesman for Pickaway County horsemen backing the event, said that four events of two heats each have been set up.

Three weeks ago, Circleville's half-mile track was the scene of the first free matinee and about 1,500 sulky fans turned out to see six events.

Best time turned in during the first matinee was 2:24 for the mile—slow for harness racing, but considered here to be good for this early in the season.

The 2:24 time was chalked by Belwin Bunter under the reins of Lou Huber Jr., of Cincinnati. It was equaled in the second heat of the same event by La Chimes, driven by Clarence Myers of Circleville.

Huber's father, the well-known Lou Huber, said Tuesday he was convinced that 2:15 would be clocked "easily" at next Sunday's matinee. He declared:

"THESE HORSES are about ready to go and 2:15 isn't at all out of line. . . . even this early."

VanCamp said that a mobile starting gate again will be used at the matinee. It will be handled by the official starter, H. D. Jewett of Portsmouth.

The Pickaway sportsman said that 44 sidewheelers now are in training at the Circleville track and that "the majority" of these will be entered in Sunday's matinee.

All racing to go will be the dean of Ohio harness race drivers, 85-year-old Joe Wolfe whose The Chimes won two straight heats the first meeting without being pressed.

It was the venerable Mr. Wolfe who Wednesday engaged in a brisk debate with Clarence Helvering at the local oval concerning the probable weather for Sunday's matinee.

Each was armed with a farmers' almanac and other bits of expert advice.

Wolfe claimed all indications pointed to a beautiful Sunday afternoon.

Helvering, however, pooh-poohed that prediction, claiming that all his information pointed to "six straight Sundays of rainy weather."

VanCamp, shying away from this argument, said only that: "The matinee is scheduled for Sunday afternoon."

VANCAMP SAID that Sunday afternoon's warmups would get underway about 1:30 p. m. with the first call to the line scheduled for 2 p. m.

As usual, there will be no charge made either to the fairgrounds or to the grandstand area. Last time out, most of the railbirds remained in their autos parked around the track.

The spokesman this week issued a call to all officials who assisted the last time—timers and judges.

"Clearly the Marshall Plan in Europe has been the most significant single right thing we have done since the end of the war. It is high time that we have a parallel MacArthur plan in Asia."

4 HARNESS RACING EVENTS READY

Another Free Matinee Set For Fairgrounds Sunday

Another free matinee of harness racing has been scheduled for Sunday afternoon at Pickaway Fairgrounds here.

George W. VanCamp, spokesman for Pickaway County horsemen backing the event, said that four events of two heats each have been set up.

Three weeks ago, Circleville's half-mile track was the scene of the first free matinee and about 1,500 sulky fans turned out to see six events.

Best time turned in during the first matinee was 2:24 for the mile—slow for harness racing, but considered here to be good for this early in the season.

The 2:24 time was chalked by Belwin Bunter under the reins of Lou Huber Jr., of Cincinnati. It was equaled in the second heat of the same event by La Chimes, driven by Clarence Myers of Circleville.

Huber's father, the well-known Lou Huber, said Tuesday he was convinced that 2

Feller Hurt As Tribe Loses

NEW YORK, April 20 — The Boston Braves got off the floor today to spike rumors of dissen-sion and disprove allegation that they are "cheese champions." These rumors looked all too credible until the National league champions touched off the first of three momentous explosions in their twin bill with the Phillies yesterday.

They made only one hit and 10 runs off Curt Simmons during the first eight innings of yesterday's first game.

Then in the ninth, the Tribes-men knocked Simmons out of the box and won the game, 4 to 3, with a four-run rally. The aroused Braves went on to win the nightcap, 11 to 2, scoring four runs in the fourth inning and six in the fifth. Vern Bickford went the route for the winners in this one.

Brooklyn's Dodgers got off to a rousing start by walloping the New York Giants 10 to 3 before 34,530, a record opening day crowd at Ebbets field. Homers by Carl Furillo, Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella, and Joe Hatten's pitching were too much for the Giants.

RIP SEWELL of the Pirates and Dutch Leonard of the Cubs, pitching veterans of 41 and 39 respectively, staged a brilliant duel at Chicago, with Sewell winning 1 to 0 in the ninth on an un-earned run.

It was the 10th straight opening day mound victory for Sewell. And losing a heartbreaker was no new experience for Leonard, who had tough luck with the Phillies all last season.

Harry Breechen of the St. Louis Cardinals lost to Cincinnati, 3 to 1, due to three un-earned runs, Cincinnati's Ken Raffensberger, who always has had the Indian sign on the Cards, held them to five hits.

Both Cleveland and the Red Sox, the two leading pennant contenders in the American league, got off on the wrong foot.

Cleveland's Bob Feller lasted only two innings as the Indians bowed to Ned Garver of the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 1. The Browns showed a well-balanced at-tack in that different players were key figures in the scoring of all their runs.

JOE DOBSON of the Red Sox, who had poor luck against the Athletics last year, was beaten by the A's 3 to 2 when Lou Bris-sie held the Sox to seven hits.

A ninth-inning homer by Tom-mey Henrich gave the New York Yankees a 3 to 2 decision over Washington, with Ed Lopat on the mound. Before becoming the hero, Henrich had loomed as the probable goat by leaving six run-ners stranded when hits were needed.

Monroe Wins In Four Way Cinder Tilt

Monroe Township tracksters annexed top honors in the quad-rangular track meet at Pick-away Township school Tuesday by scoring a total of 57½ points. The Monroe score was more than 18 points above the closest contender, the host Pickaway Townshipers, who tallied only 39 points in the contest. Trailing in third place was New Holland with 25½ points, while William-sport accepted the cellar position with 22 points.

Monroe and Pickaway tied in the number of first places during the meet, each scoring four apiece but Monroe's ability in the second and third places put it in the money.

Tigers Rack Up Season's Second Win

Circleville high school baseball team racked up its second win in three starts Tuesday afternoon by besting Dublin by a 7-1 tally in Ted Lewis Park.

Both teams were held score-less in the first inning of the contest, and the locals broke the ice with a single run in the second frame to lead at 1-0. Both teams were blanked again in the third inning.

Harold Hill, Tiger second baseman, tucked the game into the sack for Circleville in the bottom half of the fourth frame when, with two down and the bases loaded, he rapped out a stinging line-drive triple through shortstop.

HILL ADDED a fourth run for the inning by scoring from third on a single by Teammate Dick Hartinger, giving the locals a 5-0 advantage.

Dublin was given its lone break of the game in the fifth inning when Circleville Pitch-er Dudley Morris failed to find the plate, loading the bases and walking in a run.

Morris made up for his lack of control during the last of the in-ning by place-hitting a two-baser into left field to score a brace of runs, giving the locals the final 7-1 lead.

Morris wound up his game in a blaze of power by striking out four of the next six batsmen facing him to give the Tigers the win.

To date, Hill leads Tiger bat-ting with a three-game average of .429 percent, followed by Dean Smallwood with .308 and Bob Morgan with .273.

The Tigers will try for their third win of the season at Wash-ington C. H. Friday afternoon in a South Central Ohio League contest.

Birds Shiver, Delay Opener With Saints

Toledo, Indianapolis and Louisville led the American As-sociation today with one win apiece.

The league opened yesterday in a frosty midwestern at-mosphere, which got a little too deep for St. Paul and Columbus in the Ohio capital. The game was called because of extreme cold.

Toledo smashed its way to a 10-6 win over Milwaukee in the Mud Hens' home town, racking up seven in the eighth frame.

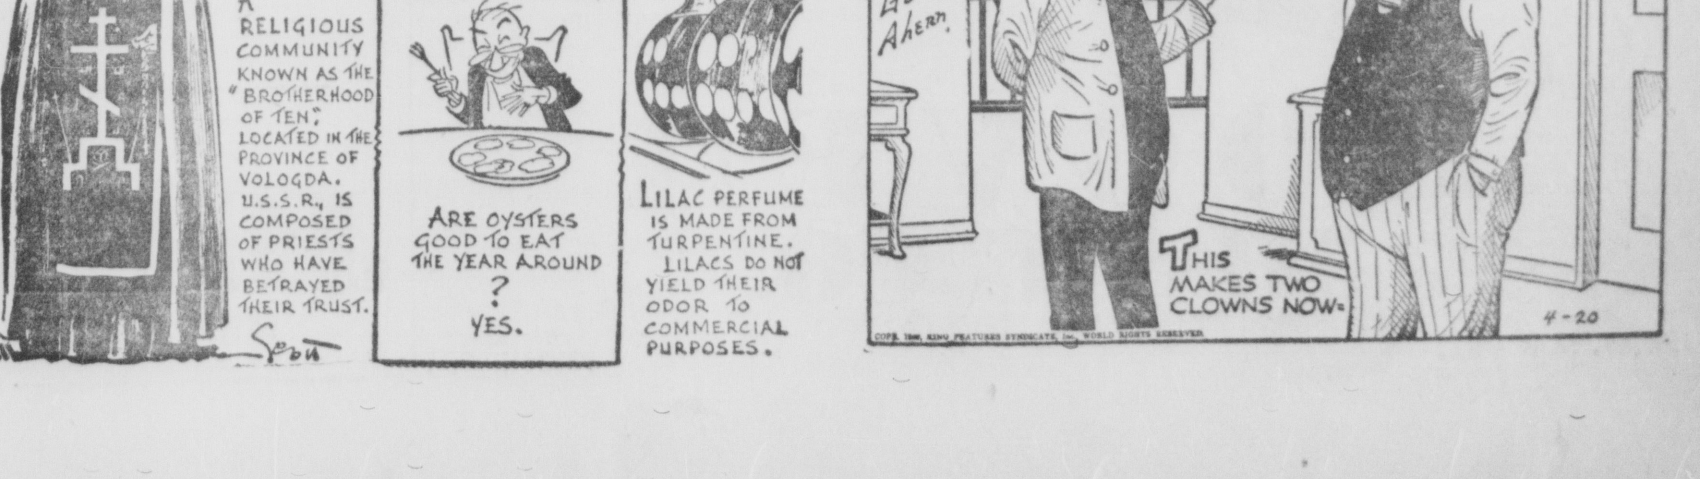

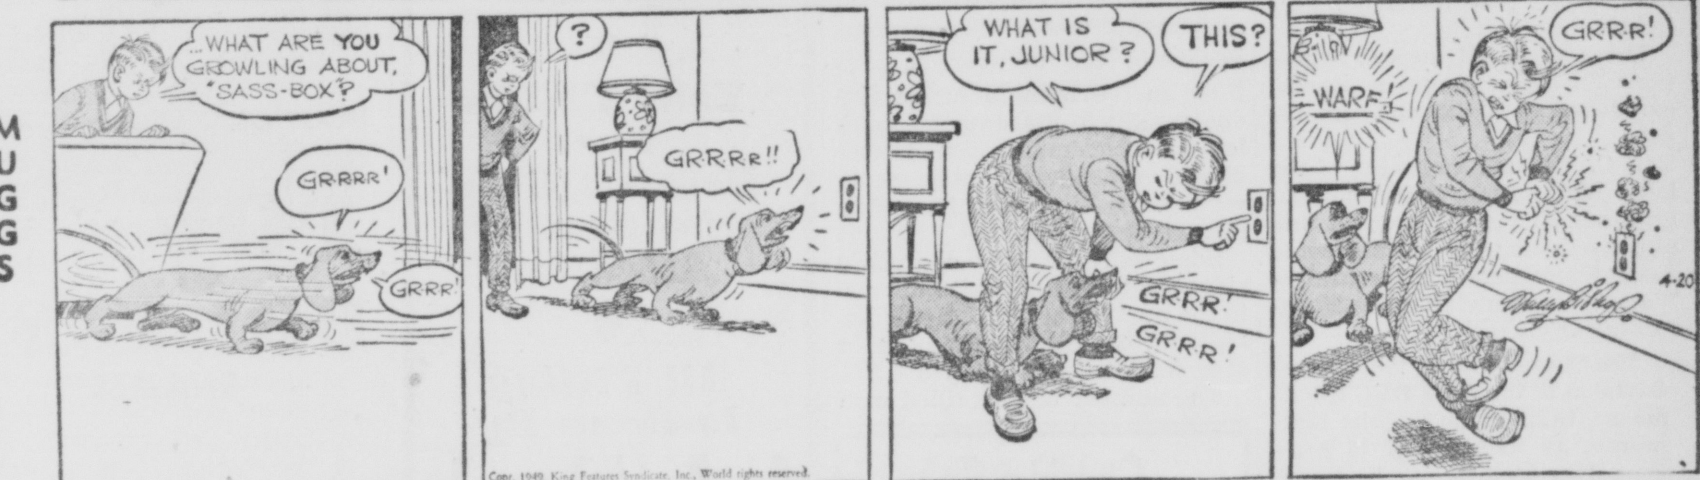

Indianapolis browbeat a Kan-sas City team 8-2, while Louis-ville edged Minneapolis 4-3 in the Kentucky city.

Unemployment Compensation Drops Here

March BUC Tally Is Given Here

Statewide Picture Notes Increase

New claims filed for unemployment compensation in Pickaway County during March took a drop over the total filed during the previous month.

Miss Mary Wolf, clerk in the local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office, said out of 50 new claims filed during March, 41 were under the Ohio Unemployment Compensation law and nine under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act. Total filed for the previous month was 68.

Continued claims were increasing in March. According to Miss Wolf's figures, 1,255 were filed during the month, while in February only 1,038 were filed.

Under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act seven persons filed for self employment in March. The month before the figure was nine.

Visits to the local office totaled 2,240 in March, compared to 1,885 during February, Miss Wolfe said.

SHE ADDED THAT the office placed 28 persons in jobs during March, six of these being year-round farm hands. The month before 43 placements were made.

There were 56 new applications for work made in March, compared to 80 during February.

C. C. Thomas, manager of the local BUC office, reported that he made 37 visits to county employers during the month, while Farm Placement Representative Walton W. Spangler made 29 agricultural visits.

The Employment Service Division of the Ohio BUC filled more than 15,500 jobs last month, an increase of 16 percent over February, Thomas said.

March's placement figure represented a reversal of a five-month downturn, Thomas said, but failed to pull down the total number of persons actively seeking work through the BUC's local offices. The 162,000 jobseekers as of March's end were up 22 percent over February's total.

The placement increase went hand-in-hand with the Employment Service Division's stepped-

FOR THE MOST PART, the placement increase during March was accounted for by jobs filled in the wholesale and retail trades, agriculture and the service industries. Many of those placed in the latter group were domestic workers.

Counter to the overall rise in placements was a four-percent decline in the number of jobs filled in the manufacturing industry. Such placements totaled 4,319 last month. Professional and managerial placements were down 10 percent from the preceding month.

Somewhat on the optimistic side was a four percent increase in the number of unfilled jobs listed with the BUC at the close of March. Such jobs totaled 6,155. The number of jobs filled with handicapped persons was up nine percent over February as was the number filled by youths under 21.

Priest Claims Bishop's Move Is 'Invalid'

BOSTON, April 20—The Rev. Leonard Feeney declared today he believes the action of Archbishop Richard J. Cushing in depriving him of his priestly functions "was invalid."

Father Feeney, poet, educator, lecturer and former Boston college professor, was in effect "suspended" for his espousal of four teachers expelled from Boston college and Boston college high school last week for their religious teachings.

Archbishop Cushing said Father Feeney now "is without ecclesiastical recognition and cannot say mass, preach or teach religion."

The penalty was for "grave offenses against the general laws of the Catholic church." Father Feeney replied: "I believe my removal in view of the facts was invalid; the taking away of my faculties was invalid; and I believe the present silencing is totally invalid."

The ban on Father Feeney was extended to St. Benedict's

Center which he operates. The pronouncement was by the archbishop also backed Boston college for dismissal of the four lay instructors, who raised charges of "heresy" against the Jesuit institution.

"The Car Designed with YOU in Mind" is changing a lot of minds!

CROWDS of people have visited our showrooms since the first announcement of the new De Soto. It has been very interesting to watch their reactions.

First of all, of course, they walk all around the car and admire its smart, low lines and its sleek appearance. They tell us they like its looks because it is "modern but not modernistic."

But the big surprise comes when they open those wide doors and step inside. The roof does not hit their hats. There's lots of headroom. The steering wheel doesn't hit the driver's knees. And because the luxurious seats are chair high, you can see everything without craning your neck.

Unemployment Compensation Drops Here

March BUC Tally Is Given Here

Statewide Picture Notes Increase

New claims filed for unemployment compensation in Pickaway County during March took a drop over the total filed during the previous month.

Miss Mary Wolf, clerk in the local Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office, said out of 50 new claims filed during March, 41 were under the Ohio Unemployment Compensation law and nine under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act. Total filed for the previous month was 68.

Continued claims were increasing in March. According to Miss Wolf's figures 1,255 were filed during the month, while in February only 1,033 were filed.

Under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance Act seven persons filed for self employment in March. The month before the figure was nine.

Visits to the local office totaled 2,240 in March, compared to 1,895 during February, Miss Wolfe said.

SHE ADDED THAT the office placed 28 persons in jobs during March, six of these being year-round farm hands. The month before 43 placements were made.

There were 56 new applications for work made in March, compared to 80 during February.

C. C. Thomas, manager of the local BUC office, reported that he made 37 visits to county employers during the month, while Farm Placement Representative Walton W. Spangler made 29 agricultural visits.

The Employment Service Division of the Ohio BUC filled more than 15,500 jobs last month, an increase of 16 percent over February, Thomas said.

March's placement figure represented a reversal of a five-month downturn, Thomas said, but failed to pull down the total number of persons actively seeking work through the BUC's local offices. The 162,000 jobseekers as of March's end were up 22 percent over February's total.

The placement increase went hand-in-hand with the Employment Service Division's stepped-up job development campaign. The 8,195 visits made to employers in a state-wide effort to "sell" job applicants represented a 44 percent increase from February.

FOR THE MOST PART, the placement increase during March was accounted for by jobs filled in the wholesale and retail trades, agriculture and the service industries. Many of those placed in the latter group were domestic workers.

Counter to the overall rise in placements was a four percent decline in the number of jobs filled in the manufacturing industry. Such placements totaled 4,319 last month. Professional and managerial placements were down 10 percent from the preceding month.

Somewhat on the optimistic side was a four percent increase in the number of unfilled jobs listed with the BUC at the close of March. Such jobs totaled 6,155. The number of jobs filled with handicapped persons was up nine percent over February as was the number filled by youths under 21.

Priest Claims Bishop's Move Is 'Invalid'

BOSTON, April 20—The Rev. Leonard Feeney declared today he believes the action of Archbishop Richard J. Cushing in depriving him of his priestly functions "was invalid."

Father Feeney, poet, educator, lecturer and former Boston college professor, was in effect "suspended" for his espousal of four teachers expelled from Boston college and Boston college high school last week for their religious teachings.

Archbishop Cushing said Father Feeney now "is without ecclesiastical recognition and cannot say mass, preach or teach religion."

The penalty was for "grave offenses against the general laws of the Catholic church." Father Feeney replied: "I believe my removal in view of the facts was invalid; the taking away of my faculties was invalid; and I believe the present silencing is totally invalid."

The ban on Father Feeney was extended to St. Benedict's

Center which he operates. The pronouncement was by the archbishop also backed Boston college for dismissal of the four lay instructors, who raised charges of "heresy" against the Jesuit institution.

"The Car Designed with YOU in Mind" is changing a lot of minds!

Crowds of people have visited our showrooms since the first announcement of the new De Soto. It has been very interesting to watch their reactions.

First of all, of course, they walk all around the car and admire its smart, low lines and its sleek appearance. They tell us they like its looks because it is "modern but not modernistic."

But the big surprise comes when they open those wide doors and step inside. The roof does not hit their hats. There's lots of headroom. The steering wheel doesn't hit the driver's knees. And because the luxurious seats are chair high, you can see everything without craning your neck.

Get in. Front seat or back, they're both wider. There's more leg room for all passengers, too. And you get all this extra space without sacrifice of convenience, because the outside dimensions of the new De Soto are not increased. You can still park with ease. And you needn't rebuild that garage.

Before you make any decision about any new car, come in and let us show you De Soto's many great features including Tip-Toe Hydraulic Shift with Fluid Drive, that lets you drive without shifting. Compare this car with any other at any price... for beauty, comfort, safety and value. Then decide.
